BORLAND PLAN GIVEN

Owner of Small House Would Pay Same for Paving as Possessor of Mansion, It Is Said.

PROTEST SENT TO GALLINGER

The following reasons for the opposition to the Borland amendment, which proposes that the entire burden of street improvements be put upon the shoulders of the owner of abutting property, are set forth in a letter sent to Senator Gallinger yesterday by Evan H. Tucker, president of the Northeast Washington Citizens' Association:

"First-The owner of a small home, valued at about $2,000, who owns no vehicles, would be required pay as much toward the paving of the street in front of his home as would the owner of a mansion valued at $100,000 of equal frontage on the same street, though the owner of the mansion also might own many vehicles and enjoy a large benefit from the improvement.

"Second—A small house yielding an in-"Second—A small house yielding an income of $17 per month, or $204 a year, would be required to pay as much toward the paving of the street as would a large apartment house or business property of equal frontage, although the latter properties might yield an income of $2,000 a year, notwithstanding the probability that the owner of the small property would derive but little benefit from the improvement, while the owners of the large properties would own many vehicles and would be much benefited.

"Third—A small holding, valued at $3,000, might be required to pay many

$2,000, might be required to pay many times the amount that a large one would pay by reason of the small house occu-pying a corner lot, thereby having many plying a corner lot, thereby having many times as much frontage as a mansion, apartment house or business house, occu-pying an inside lot; or the small house might occupy a lot which fronts on an avenue and runs back to a street, which is often the case, and this small house would be assessed double as much for street paying as would a larger house, of many times its value, which happened to many times its value, which happened to have only one frontage.

"Fourth—Ninety-six per cent of the streets of one of the urban sections of Washington have been paved, many have been repaved many times, all of which have been paid for out of the general fund, to which the property on the unimproved streets in other sections of the city, as well as in the suburbs, has been contributing by the payment of taxes, for over a hundred years." over a hundred years."
In conclusion, Mr. Tucker urges that the present plan of paying for street pavements be retained.

The association demands that the civil service commission interfere to prevent a "bad precedent." The following is a copy of the resolutions:

"Whereas it has been repeatedly reported in the public press that it is the intention of woman suffragists employed in the classified service of the government to participate actively in a public suffrage parade and political demonstration (wearing party colors, badges, banners, mottos, etc.) to be held in this city and elsewhere in the month of May, of this and file of the suffrage associations; therefore be it "Resolved, That the District of Columbia Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage voice its solemn protest against the participation in such demonstration on the part of government employes, who are paid servants of all the people, irrespective of party, as being in direct violation of the letter and spirit of the law regulating the conduct of Federal officeh and employes, and as creating a dangerous precedent in that classified employes subscribing to the Democratic, Republican, Progressive, Socialist, Prohibitionist, Single Tax, or any other political doctrine could claim the same privilege, and as being therefore demoralizing to the public service and detrimental to the interests of the government; and

"Resolved, That the heads of the various departments of the government and the civil service commission be requested to take steps for the proper enforcement of the laws regulating this matter, and expressly to forbid all active participation of government employes in aforesaid and all contemplated public and political demonstrations, as in so doing they might cause public scandal or unfavorable comment and offend person who have relations with them in their official capacity.'-(Civil service rule.)"
